Today, GAM is announcing it has been ranked as one of the best Swiss-listed financial services firms for corporate governance in sustainability rating agency Inrate's annual zRating study, for the third year running.

GAM puts sustainability at the heart of its business, and this was recognised in the ranking achieving a score of 4 out of 5 points in the new category Sustainability and Information Policy.

The zRating study is published for the 14th time since 2009, analysing 171 listed Swiss companies based on their 2021 Annual Reports and 2022 Annual General Meetings and evaluating 68 quantitative and qualitative criteria using a scoring model.

There are five categories this year, with the original categories including 'Shareholders and Capital Structure', 'Shareholders' Participation Rights', 'Composition of the Board of Directors/Executive Board', and 'Compensation and Participation Models of the Board of Directors/General Management'. Compared to other years the criteria catalogue was slightly modified and supplemented with a final category on 'Sustainability and Information Policy'.

The maximum achievable rating across all five categories is 100 points. Along with the rating, Inrate identifies potential corporate risks from a corporate governance perspective that could impact each company that makes the list.
